SOME INSTRUCTIONS IN TEACHING ENGLISH

The textbook for the 5th form carries on the series of the English textbooks for Tajik schools.

The language selection, its arrangement and introducing of the language material are worked out according to the latest achievements in theory and practice of foreign language teaching at schools. The main goal of the textbook is further mastering of speech habits and skills, namely, oral speech and reading texts with full comprehension of the plot being achieved by means of adequate translation or by putting questions.

The textbook consists of (72 Lessons), irregular verbs, topical vocabulary and contents. The whole language material is presented in the following way:

Lessons 1 - 18

Lessons 19 - 36

Lessons 37 - 54

Lessons 55 - 72

All lessons are similar in structure. The language material of every lesson is centered round a definite topic. Much attention is paid to the combination of different language units and mastering oral speech skills. Almost every lesson gives the pupils some new information in English. All the exercises are to be done in the order. They are given in the textbook. Some of exercises should be done in writing.

HOW TO TEACH PRONUNCIATION

The pronunciation of words is not only a better of sounds, but also of stress or accent. The pronunciation of sentence patterns includes also variations of musical tones: rise and fall. In teaching English pronunciation the teacher should bear in mind that the difficulties of pupils will meet with: sounds, stresses and musical tones strange to Tajik speaking pupils. Every lesson of this textbook includes some exercises which help to master the pupils to observe correct pronunciation of words, stresses and musical tones. Pupils must learn to pronounce English words and sentences by imitating the teacher's pronunciation, some teacher's explanation and gestures in particular are helpful.

MIND THE RULE: first pupils should pronounce a word in unison, then individually then in unison again until the teacher sees that they can pronounce the sound, the word with the sound and the whole sentence correctly. Pronunciation can be taught only by a patient and persistent effort through the whole course of study.

HOW TO TEACH VOCABULARY:

There are two kinds of words in the textbook: productive ones which are used by the pupils in their speech and receptive words given in the footnotes with their translation. These words are not to be learnt. There are two stages in vocabulary teaching: presentation and consolidation. Presentation and preliminary consolidation of new words are based on the doing of exercises with the instruction "Read, translate and learn the words". The ways of presentation and preliminary consolidation of new words are:

- a) a new word is read by a pupil (transcription is written by the teacher);
- b) teacher explains the meaning of the word;
- c) the pupils will read sentences with a new word of a paragraph, translate the sentences and either answer the question or fill in a new word in a sentence. It is advisable to do retranslation (in unison) of some sentences of the paragraph read by the pupils;
- d) after the presentation and consolidation of all the new words the pupils read and translate all the presented words in unison after the teacher;
- e) in case of some spare time at the lesson, the pupils write down the words and their translation in their notebooks. The teacher must arrange the revision of the words covered at every lesson as a phonetic drill: the words are read in unison after the teacher, the pupils have to translate these words in unison, too.

HOW TO DEVELOP THE PUPILS ORAL SPEECH

1) LISTENING is developed by means of training the pupils in listening comprehension throughout the whole period of instruction. There are some devices the teacher uses for the purpose. The teacher uses the English language:

- a) when giving the class instructions,
- b) when introducing new language material (words, sentence patterns. Note: a grammar phenomenon is presented in Tajik and Russian languages),
- c) when checking the pupils' comprehension (by means of answering the teacher's questions, retelling in English),
- d) when checking the pupils assimilation of the language material covered,
- e) when consolidating the material presented.

Remember: almost every topical text should be introduced through the teacher's retelling of the text and its comprehension.

2) SPEAKING is developed by means of exercises presented in the textbook. The devices used for the purpose are: visual aids, through visual perception of the subject to be spoken about, including a text. To fulfill the instruction of "Read the text and retell" the teacher should make his pupils fulfil the following exercises"

- a) a pupil reads a sentence;
- b) another pupil puts 1-2 questions on it;
- c) all the pupils do choral retranslation of the sentence;
- d) after doing of all these exercises over the whole text, the pupils retell the text in a chain around the class.

If the text consists of more than 6-7 sentences, the rest of the text is studied either by means of putting questions on the sentences or by doing retranslation.

3) TALKING is developed by means of learning pattern dialogues and some other exercises given in the textbook.

How to work at the pattern dialogues:

- a) the dialogue is read and translated by the pupils;
- b) it is memorized by the pupils, by means of individual and choral retranslation (retranslation is always done in chorus);
- c) all the pupils, sitting at the desks, reproduce the dialogue simultaneously in a pair talk;
- d) the teacher listens to some pairs of pupils (2-3) who reproduce it;
- e) the pupils modify the dialogue being learned by them, they compose dialogues of their own (first simultaneous pair talk comes, then the teacher listens to some pairs of the pupils).

Sometimes the pupils are given a picture or a verbal situation to talk about.

HOW TO MASTER THE TECHNIQUE OF READING

There are some exercises on rules of reading in the textbook. These exercises are read by the pupils first individually then in unison. Reading aloud as a method of teaching and learning the English language should take more time than silent reading. It is advisable to read some lines of a text in unison, this helps to master the pupils' pronunciation and the technique of reading. Translation of the text is permissible.

The authors hope that the textbook will contribute to the English language at secondary schools.

The authors will be greatly indebted for any critical remarks by school teachers.

The remarks should be sent to the Editorial Office Publishing House.

A TOWN

In some cases, "town" is an alternative name for "city" or "village" (especially a larger village). Sometimes, the word "town" is short for "township". In general, today towns can be differentiated from townships, villages, or hamlets on the basis of their economic character, in that most of a town's population will tend to derive their living from manufacturing industry, commerce, and public services rather than primary industry such as agriculture or related activities.

A place's population size is not a reliable determinant of urban character. In many areas of the world, e.g. in India at least until recent times, a large village might contain several times as many people as a small town. In the United Kingdom, there are historical cities that are far smaller than the larger towns.

A VILLAGE

A village is a clustered human settlement or community, larger than a hamlet but smaller than a town with the population ranging from a few hundred to a few thousand. Though often located in rural areas, the term urban village is also applied to certain urban neighbourhoods, such as the East Village in Manhattan, New York City

In the past, villages were a usual form of community for societies that practice subsistence agriculture, and also for some non-agricultural societies. In Great Britain, a hamlet earned the right to be called a village when it built a church. In many cultures, towns and cities were few, with only a small proportion of the population living in them. This also enabled specialization of labor and crafts, and development of many trades. The trend of urbanization continues, though not always in connection with industrialization. Villages have been eclipsed in importance as units of human society and settlement
